

How the EGA Program Works

Individual board members can earn four different levels of distinctions (Commendable, Advanced, Distinguished, and Exemplary in the Exemplary Governance Award Program) by accumulating points for various ISBA or ISBA recognized activities.

As each individual level is attained, the board member is awarded a lapel pin to proudly wear at ISBA and other educational functions. In addition, they are recognized in the ISBA quarterly publication, The Journal.

If a majority of a board attains a minimum Commendable Individual recognition, the board is considered a Commendable Board. Once all board members have attained a minimum of Commendable Individual, the board will be recognized as an Advanced Board. Advanced Boards who complete a board self-assessment, and a board development retreat with an outside facilitator will be considered a Distinguished Board.

The highest level of board recognition for participation in professional development is that of Exemplary Board. Exemplary board status is conferred upon boards that complete the designated criteria— See Exemplary Requirments here.
